Planning For The Future: What's Ahead In 2022

With security incidents and breaches skyrocketing, the security industry is looking for value-based metrics that show return on investment. In 2022, threats will continue to rise and will include increased targeting of small to medium-sized businesses that are important to the supply chain of larger enterprises. One way to accomplish this is by attacking the identities in the supply chain including mergers and acquisitions that have the least sophisticated security posture.
